THE TARANTULA HAWK.

A Wasp That Preys on the Dangerous Tarantula. From the New York Sun.

"Low down on the Rio Grande river," said a man from Texas, "where the sands are heated almost red hot with the sun, there grow the biggest centipedes, the biggest rattlesnakes and biggest tarantulas in the world. If you can look at one of these tarantulas when he is pinned fast to a board with the naturalist's thin steel pin, and you are sure that he is good and dead and cannot spring at you and shoot his poison into you, he forms an interesting subject to study. They are horrible-looking hairy things, with eight legs and eight eyes. Their colors are dark brown and black. The female tarantula is said to be a fickle spouse and to have a summary way, all her own, of getting rid of her consort when she is tired of him. She woes and weds all right, assumes the entire care and support f the young family. The that matr moula e has she turns to and kills her hus-Not content with killing him, she eats him. The female is the larger and stronger of the two; they are simply gigantic for spiders. I have seen those that measured six inches between the stretch of their legs. They are the terror of man and beast. But there is one little animal of the insect family that wicked Mrs. Tarantula stands in as much dread of as man stands in dread of her, and that is a big wasp that in Texas is known by the name of the tarantula hawk. The tarantula hawk has an exceedingly bad opinion of the tarantula. It will fly around over the head of the tarantula, make a lightning-like dive down, get a good clutch of the monster spider, fly away home with him, then all the tarantu-la hawk family sit down to sup? "The tarantula hawk will not hurt men. la hawk family sit down to sup?

"The tarantula hawk will not hurt men. On the contrary, it is a blessing, and you never hear of a western man harming one of them. It is said that these Rio Grande cattle rangers are indebted for the tarantula hawk to an old New England professor, who, while down in that country in pursuit of his studies as a naturalist, was stung by one of these monster spiders and nearly died, and would certainly have died had it not been for the whisky flask of his guide. In that country where rattlesnakes, tarantulas and centipedes are so big and so pientiful, no rancher leaves his house without his whisky flask. Shortly after the old professor left that part of the country, the rancher received a small box of these tarantula hawks, with instructions what to do with them. He turned the big wasps loose, they increased and multiplied and now they are holding their own against their enemy, the tarantula."

"The first writing was done on stone," remarked the wise man, at dinner.

"Great gracious! Think of the postage!"
involuntarily exclaimed the rising poet, with a shudder that rattled the dishes.—

THE NATIONAL GUARD

Light Battery A Sets Forth on Annual Practice March.

OFFICERS GOING TO PHILIPPINES

Leaves of Absence, Transfers, Discharges and an Election.

FAIRNESS AT SEA GIRT

Light Battery A assembled at its armory mounted and in heavy marching order early this morning and shortly before 8 o'clock departed on its annual practice march. In obedience to special orders from District, militia headquarters the battery will proceed overland to Snickersville, Va. taking such route as seems most practicable to Lieutenant Waters, the commanding officer, and will return to this city on or before the 25th instant.

Upon return the commanding officer of the battery will report in person to the adjutant general. A written report of the march and a map of the route taken will be forwarded by the battery commander to headquarters within ten days from the date of return. Morning reports will be prepared each day during the outing, and will be forwarded to headquarters immediately upon completion of the march. Going to the Philippines.

The National Guard has sustained a loss by the departure of Major Graham, Captain Shaw, Captain Griffith, Captain Lewis and Captain Beatty, who tendered their resignations during the past week in order to enter the volunteer military service of the United States. All five were enthusiastic guardsmen and unusually cap-able officers, as was attested not only by their service with the brigade, but throughout their connection with the 1st Regiment, District of Columbia Volunteer Infantry, and other organizations in the field, last

It is understood that a number of other officers of the District National Guard are actively in quest of commissions in the volunteer regiments, now organizing, and all of them nope to be successful. No intimation has yet been given as to who will succeed Major Graham, Captain Griffith, Captain Shaw, Captain Lewis and Captain Beatty, as major of the 6th Battation, captain of Light Battery A, inspector of rifle practice of the 2d Regiment, captain of Company D, 2d Battalion, and Company A, 1st Battalion, respectively. Leaves of Absence Granted.

Leave of absence until the 1st of September has been granted First Lieutenant Wilson B. Evans, quartermaster, 1st Separate Battalion, and First Lieutenant James E. Walker, adjutant, 1st Separate Battalion. Leave of absence from the 15th instant until the 30th of September next, has been granted Second Lieutenant Roy B. Hayes, Company C, 6th Battalion. The enlisted men of Company A, 5th Battalion, have been ordered to assemble at their armory Monday evening, the 17th instant, at 8 o'clock, or as soon thereafter as practicable, for the purpose of holding an election for captain. Major R. D. Simms, commanding the 5th Battalion, will pre-Upon their own request, Landsmen A. B. Bennett, jr., and A. E. Craig, Naval Battalion, have been transferred to the Ambulance Corps. The following have been honorably dis charged on their own applications: Corporal Edward L. Kiotz, Company A, 5th Battalion; Private Paul Oskar Plenckner, Light Battery A, and Private Percy M.

Whitney, Light Battery A.

In the interest of the service, Private T.
C. Washington, Company C, 1st Battalion, has been discharged.

Perfect Fairness at Sea Girt.

Preliminary practice in anticipation of the competition for places on the brigade and other teams that will represent the District of Columbia National Guard in the annual rifle competitions at Sea Girt is being conducted satisfactorily at the Ordway range. In fact, this is the only thing in the way of genuine work that is being attempted by the guardsmen.

For the purpose of settling all doubts as to the ammunition to be used by the Na-tional Rifle Association and other military matches during the Sea Girt meeting, which will occur September 4 to 9 next, the fol-lowing regulations have been adopted by the executive committee of the New Jersey

State Rifle Association: The government having ceased loading the regular ammunition at the Frankfort arsenal, and the ammunition now issued to the states being such as purchased from contractors, the regulation relating to ammunition is modified.

The New Jersey State Rifle Association has purchased from the state of New Jersey sufficient ammunition, in original packages, as issued by the government and made by the Winchester Repeating Arms

Company, March, 1808, and has set the same aside for use in the matches refer-This ammunition may be purchased at the range by team captains or it will be exchanged for the service ammunition in exchanged for the service ammunition in equal quantities.

This ammunition will not be sold or exchanged until the beginning of the match in which it is to be used, and the original packages will be deposited at the firing point in a conspicuous place. Competitors will take cartridges from the box singly immediately before firing.

To promote perfect fairness, at the commencement of firing each match sufficient boxes will be taken from the magazine, and team captains will draw by lot for enough packages to supply the members of their teams for pool shots and shots in the competition about to be begun.

MARCHING WITH MENELEK.

Fifty Thousand Men That Made Twelve Miles in Four Hours. From the London Times.

After a very short day in Adis Abeba the capital of Ethiopia, we departed northwards with the king of Baromelda, which lies near Magdala, on the road to the province of Tigre. Doubtless King Menelek was anxious for peace, though ready, if necessary, to use force to suppress any attempt at rebellion on the part of Ras Mangascia. It is quite evident that the king is well aware that civil war would mean ruin to him at this critical period of

The king left the Gebi, by which name his palace at the capital is known, with little ceremony. He might have been going for a quiet evening's ride on his mule instead of being the leader of an immense following. His face itself displays a kind following. His face itself displays a kind heart and a constant consideration for those below him, and the results of his reign, shown in the peace which he has brought to his own country and to the others bordering upon it, are proofs of his great power of management and organiza-

On awakening before daybreak, in the On awakening before daybreak, in the king's camp, I was struck by the silence that prevailed, but as soon as the king's tents were struck the thousands of others disappeared in rapid succession. On the disappeared in rapid succession. On the march the king was preceded by his drummers and shawmers and his favorite dogs, including a famous Dane, a present from the Italian government. Behind him rode his "gasha-jagry." or armor-bearers, carrying his rifles, inclosed in red and crimson cloth and his shield. Around him crimson cloth, and his shield. Around him rode or walked a number of the higher officials and immediately behind these we ourselves followed. As the king had given an order that we were to be allowed breathing space, we were able to observe in comfort all around us as we rode along. We passed through a country of grassy valleys bounded by equally grassy hills valleys bounded by equally grassy hills, crossing frequently from one valley over a ridge into another. Thus the immense crowds of people, mounted and on foot, and the innumerable baggage-animals marched with a very broad front, not only stretching across the valley itself, but even extending up the hills did not be only certain. the hills might be seen and could certain-ly be heard knots of villagers, who, hav-ing stripped themselves to the waist out of respect, calling out together at the top of their voices, "Janhoi, janhoi" ("the king, the king"). There were others, too, who cried out in the most determined fashion, "Abeit, abeit" ("justice, justice"), and tried to rush past the orderlies, who were armed with shafts of spears to clear the way. They received a torrent of blows, but, in spite of these, made earnest en-deavors to catch the king's eye. If they could have done this they knew their cas.

Once the king, changing from the mule he rode on to a beautiful gray pony, wheeled to a flank. This was a signal for all who could to mount horses and follow him, who could to mount horses and follow him, and immediately we found ourselves cantering over an endless stretch of excellent turf with a crowded mass of irregular horsemen. Presently a large body of them galloped out to the front, while the king checked his horse to a walk. He was about to vary the march with an exhibition of "guks," or sham fight on horseback. Those in advance suddenly wheeled round and galloped at full speed in a very fair line toward the king until they were within a very short distance. Then, quickly throwing their spear shafts, pulling up, and wheeling round again, they retired in haste, to be followed immediately by a number of warriors from the king's side. Some of the riders were as agile as cats in jumping from their steeds, seizing their jumping from their steeds, seizing their shafts and remounting again. Great dex-terity was shown insthrowing these weap-ons, which, even without spearhead, are capable of giving a very nasty knock. The king himself, though over fifty years of age, frequently led his party into the fray, and proved himself to be no mean horse-age, frequently led his party into the fray, and proved himself to be no mean horseman or spear-thrower.

In this way we fought our way to a new camping ground, and while the king's tents were being pitched we sat with him on the summit of a hill from which we could watch the masses flowing into camp. The most noticeable feature was the arrival of Queen Taitou, who, seated on a dark brown mule, was protected by an extraordinarily large red umbrella, while a great number of her lady attendants made a gay scene with their differently and brightly colored sunshades. In front of her were a number of musicians piping on reed instruments. These were preceded by a formidable guard of horse soldiers, and a body of equal number brought up the rear. As the party passed close by we showed our respect for the empress, not by following the example of the villagers in stripping ourselves to the waist, but in saluting.

The pitching of the king's tent indicated how the other tents were to be placed, and the direction in which the door of Menelek's tent faced gave the direction of the march on the morrow. So complete were the camping arrangements that, although there must have been over 50,000 souls and 20,000 mules, ponles and dohkeys, every camp was pitched without the slightest noise or confusion. A march of twelve miles had been accomplished in four hours, and in another hour thousands of tents were up. There were no orderlies and trumpeters, or D. A. A. G.'s or D. A. Q. M. G.'s. This wonderful management seems to show that in one respect, at any rate, we have something to learn from the Abyssinians.
